At the First Baptist church Monday evening Mr. Luther told the story of his own cenversion, illustrating the theme The Last Opportunity, the text for which was found in Gen. 6:3, "My Spirit shall not always strive with man." The text empinsizes tour facts, said the speaker. First, God strives with men; a blessed fact; with nations, as he strove with Nineveh; with churches, as he strove with Nineveh; with churches in Asia, and with individuals, as he strove with Saul of Tarsus. Second, the striving is spiritual, touching man's spiritual nature, and hence not always or necessarily apparent to others by outward and striving by outward and striving is spiritual, touching man's spiritual nature, and hence not always or necessarily apparent to others by outward and striving is spiritual. the soul is "past feeling." as the Apostle Paul writes.

Mr. Luther believed it was possible for one to sin away the day of grace long, before death comes, and quoted the farrous hymn of Dr. Alexander beginning "There is a time, we know not when." etc. He believes he stood on the verge of that time the night he yielded to God nearly thirty-eight years ago, and that if he had not yielded then all opportunity to do so would have passed forever. In attestation of this he told a story of known remistance to the calls of God, covering the years of youth and well into the twenties, which, if devoid of the blood-curdling stories of many such preachers, was no less interesting in the stirring recital of a persistent resistance to means of grace as varied as they were thrilling. The illustrated lecture by Hon. Os-car P. Austin, Washington, D. C., sec-retary of the Geographic society, will retary of the Geographic society, while be given, in Trinity Methodist church Saturday evening March 27, at 7.45. This, like the other addresses, will be public, the subject being Cathedrals, Mosques and Temples of the World.

The lecture is the result of Mr. Austin's personal studies in his visits to a score of converters and colonics and on Tonight he will speak upon "Open Mouths" and tell of his first meeting of his college mates after his convertin's personal studies in his visits to a score of countries and colonies and on his recent trip around the world, illus-trated by 200 views of the famous wor-ship places of the great religions of the world—Christianity. Mohammedanism, Huddhism, Brahminism and Taoism— Congressman Higgins has introduced the following pension bills, which were not reported last season: In behalf of Francis Buroughs of Killingly, at $30 per month; in behalf of George E. Leonard of Norwich, also at $30 per month; in behalf of Henry E. Silcox of Norwich, at $40 per month; in behalf of Henry E. Silcox of Norwich, at $45 per month; in behalf of Henry E.
